Scientists discover new planet around star closest to sun

Scientists believe the planet orbits about 4 million light-years away from the sun. It is the third planet found by Proxima Centauri, which is the closest star to the Sun. The planet is named Proxima Centauri b, and it is the first planet to be discovered around the star.

The discovery was made using the Very Large Telescope (VLT) in Chile, which is one of the world’s largest telescopes.

The planet is about three times the size of the Earth and it is located in the habitable zone of the star, which means that it could potentially support life.

Scientist Esha Nigam added: “This discovery is a significant step towards our understanding of exoplanets. The discovery of a planet so close to the Sun is a major milestone in the search for habitable worlds.”
